The primary purpose of this course is to give graduate students the opportunity to either lecture on their own research or on papers written by other mathematicians. From time to time, Prof. Berndt will give lectures on open problems, which are often suitable for thesis research.

This course may be taken for either no credit or a half unit’s credit.